

The final video for the Fault Line series for Battlefield 3 is out. This time the video starts with the main character getting through some air ventilation system to access an enemy building. The main character ends up fighting an enemy by hand and actually disarming what it looks like to be a home-made bomb.

The next thing we see is the main character running through a semi-destroyed city and using his weapon to shoot some enemies on top of a bridge. At the end the main character spends the remaining of the video on the bridge shooting enemies.

Here is the comment on this video from the official Battlefield 3 Website:

"As the explosive finish to the Battlefield 3 Fault Line series draws near, Sgt. Black is tasked with disarming a home-made bomb, leading to first-person melee combat with the bomber and a large-scale firefight in the streets against massive opposition. Stay tuned for the full 12 minute reveal on April 17."

Battlefield 3 Fault Line Trailer Episode III: Get that Wire Cut

{youtube}DsHlHxYXeLs{/youtube}

{jcomments on}